Equine Veterinarians Australia (EVA) Submission to the Horse Disease Response Levy Review

EVA's Position

EVA has over 1,100 members Australia-wide. EVA is the peak professional body representing the veterinarians who care for the health and welfare of Australia's horses.

Background

It is imperative that in Australia, exotic animal disease emergencies are coordinated nationally by government and affected industries, and the Emergency Animal Disease Response Agreement (EADRA) is the most appropriate process to oversee that need. In addition, The Horse Disease Response Levy Act 2011 and the Horse Disease Response Levy Collection Act 2011 are suitable pieces of legislation to ensure that an emergency disease response is adequately funded. EVA respects that a five yearly review of the Acts is required. However, when the status quo continues to meet current and expected equine needs in an EADRA, then there should not be any momentum, or requirement for a legislative change.

EVA supports the current two nil-rated, simultaneous levy collection points of manufactured feed and worm treatments as they provide the most equitable options with limited leakage points. As the current response levy has not been tested, a case to change the current collection points is difficult to make.

Recommendation

EVA recommends that no changes be made to The Horse Disease Response Levy Act 2011 and the Horse Disease Response Levy Collection Act 2011.
